- Historical perspectives on specimen preservation.
- Legal and ethical considerations in specimen collection and preservation.

Unit II : Preservation method

- Taxidermy techniques: Skinning, mounting, and finishing.
- Skeletal articulation: Cleaning, assembling, and mounting skeletons.
- Wet specimen preservation: Formalin fixation, jar preparation, and maintenance.
- Freeze-drying and specimen preparation for display.
- Documentation and cataloging of specimens: Labels, records, and databases.

Unit III : Challenges and Specialized Preservation

- Challenges in preserving delicate specimens, such as insects, fragile tissues, and aquatic organisms.
- Ethical considerations in collecting and preserving rare or endangered species.
- Innovative methods in specimen preservation: DNA sampling, 3D scanning, and digital preservation.

Unit IV : Safety, Maintenance, and Future Directions

- Safety protocols when working with hazardous chemicals and materials.
- Storage and maintenance of preserved specimens: Temperature, humidity, and light control.
- Emerging technologies and future trends in zoological specimen preservation.
- Course review, assessment, and participant presentations.

Practical

1. Classification of museum specimen
2. Skeletal articulation: Cleaning, assembling, and mounting skeletons.
3. Wet specimen preservation: Formalin fixation, jar preparation, and maintenance.
4. Freeze-drying and specimen preparation.
5. Documentation and cataloging of specimens: Labels, records, and databases.
6. Innovative method : QR code designing, labeling and scanning.

Skill-Based Certificate Course on Zoological Museum Management

Report

The Department of Zoology organized a Skill-Based Certificate Course on Zoological Museum Management from 26th December, 2023, to 30th January, 2024. This course aimed to provide practical knowledge and hands-on experience to B.Sc. I and B.Sc. III students, enriching their understanding of museum management in the field of Zoology.

The course was designed to cover various aspects of Zoological museum management. It included both lectures and practical sessions conducted by faculty members in the department. The curriculum was designed to provide comprehensive insights into the organization, maintenance, and curation of Zoological collections. The students received in-depth theoretical knowledge on the principles of museum management, collection preservation, and taxidermy techniques. Hands-on experience was provided in organizing and curating specimens, creating labels, and managing exhibits. Students were exposed to various tools and techniques used in museum practices. The faculty members conducted lectures and supervised practical sessions, ensuring a blend of theoretical understanding and practical skills.

The culmination of the course was marked by an examination held on 3rd February, 2024, in the department. The examination tested the students on their theoretical knowledge and practical skills acquired during the course. Certificates were generated for students who submitted a feedback report, reflecting their commitment to the course. The Skill-Based Certificate Course on Zoological Museum Management proved to be a valuable addition to the academic curriculum of the participating students. The course not only deepened their understanding of zoological collections
